

Application to rent an 'Ideal Commoning Base' property

Under the instruction of the Forestry Minister, Forestry England - together with the Verderers, CDA, National Park Authority and District Council - undertook a review of its New Forest Housing in 2019-20. This identified three categories of property, each to be used in a different way for the public good. The majority of properties were classified as an 'Ideal Commoning Base' to be let below market rents, calculated by way of a formula, in return for the public benefit realised through a tenant's commoning activities.

These cottages are valuable assets that can help support commoning in the New Forest for years to come. As such we expect each re-letting to be a competitive process whereby a Selection Panel will judge each application on its merits and the prospective tenant's commitment to commoning. The Selection Panel is made up of one Forestry England representative and two Verderers of the New Forest (the Official Verderer or their appointee and an elected Verderer). The Selection Panel will consider all eligible applications but may decide it is necessary to interview some or all of the applicants in order to decide who should be offered a tenancy.

In order to be considered for one of these properties you must demonstrate you are:

- eligible and suitable; and
- have sufficient household income to:
 - meet the required rent;
 - maintain the facilities in good condition; and
 - maintain high standards of welfare of your animals.

Eligibility: You are able to apply to rent an Ideal Commoning Base property (as outlined in the Report of the Housing Review Group; February 2020) if you:

"Are actively contributing to the practical management of the land, vegetation or wildlife of the New Forest, or the management of commoning livestock that grazes upon it. Your contribution should be regarded as more than minimal and/or temporary."

Suitability: Each application will be judged against the selection criteria outlined in Section 4. There is no minimum number of animals that you should turn out but you must demonstrate how your activities contribute to the public benefit derived from livestock grazing the New Forest. The Selection Panel's objective is to maximise the public benefit realised from granting a new tenancy on an Ideal Commoning Base.

Rent: If you are turning out livestock onto the Forest and paying the required marking fees, your rent will be calculated using the formula set out in Report of the Housing Review Group; February 2020. This will be explained as part of any tenancy offer.

Frequently Asked Questions

Application to rent a Forestry England Property - Commoning

Can I apply if I'm not currently Commoning?

Yes. But it will not be enough to simply start commoning once you rent one of these cottages. Your application will have to demonstrate your knowledge of and commitment to commoning and the New Forest. For example, you may have helped members of your family or other established commoners with their animals. Or you may have undertaken a mentoring scheme or some formal training/apprenticeship. The objective is to maximise the public benefit every single cottage can add by ensuring it is used in the most appropriate way. This may mean someone is able to common in their own name for the first time or that a tenant is able to return to commoning after a period without the means or facilities to common effectively.

Can I apply if I own a property?

The letting of each cottage should maximise the public benefit realised through commoning. Owning a property doesn't disqualify you from renting one of these cottages but you will have to demonstrate how occupying that property restricts your commoning activity. You will also need to show how this other property will be used if you're renting a Forestry England cottage and the value of any resulting income. The ideal commoning base should make a real and material difference to an applicant's activities, not just make life more convenient. It is therefore likely that an applicant who does not own a house or land within or close to the New Forest will score more highly than an applicant who does but each case will be considered on its merits.

What sort of tenancy will I receive?

The successful applicant will initially be offered a Farm Business Tenancy for two years. This will include the cottage and any associated back up grazing, yard areas and outbuildings. The value of the cottage rent is set by a formula laid out in the Housing Review report. The value of the land is set at 'open market agricultural values' as laid out in the Illingworth Report – i.e. not local pony laddock rates. These will be combined to form a single monthly rent paid in advance. If both parties are happy at the end of the first 2 years, and the tenant is still eligible, then the tenancy will be renewed for a longer term to be negotiated. This tenancy will set out all the obligations for the tenant and landlord (Forestry England) and will be explained as part of the letting process.
