Main military training zone

Look to restructure zone to meet the demand of the RAF Spadeadam training role.

Black Grouse

Introduce an element of open woodland at the forest sedge to provide a transitional habitat between the moor and the forest

Border Mires

Clear the former extent of the mires at clearfelling and leave open through subsequent rotations.

Red squirrels

Ensure that the clearfelling and restocking proposals do not compromise the potential Red squirrel conservation value of Spadeadam.

Irving Gorge

Area of ancient semi natural woodland associated with the gorge. Maintain the current area of native woodland and look at restocking to extend the area, of native broadleaves at restocking.

Streamside Corridors

The riparian corridors associated with the main water courses provide site with better soils and greater shelter, and therefore most opportunities to introduce species diversity. Emphasising these valley feature will also strengthen the appearance of landform

Ancient monuments

A number of ancient monuments are present within the plan area these can be opened up at clearfelling and maintained as open space though subsequent rotations

View 1 from A69 North

Exaggerating the viewer height to 150m above ground, makes the coupe structure and restocking structure (notably the use of broad leaf species to emphasise land form) more visible.

View 2 from Birdoswald Roman fort

From the popular visitor attraction of Birdoswald Roman fort only the southern boundary of the forest is visible. The straightness of this boundary is currently mitigated by the external hedgerow and small woodland that lie within the view. These will be further enhanced by the restructuring of this boundary at restocking
