

Salcey Forest // Enchanted Encampment

Some of the chunky existing trunks relocated to form a boundary either side of the doorway. They can also be used as low level balance beams and seating.

Three of the biggest logs will be carved to create large bowls positioned at the centre of the circle to be used as an imaginary cooking spot or a space to mix found objects to create potions.

This space could be further enhanced by adding colour / stains added to the existing dens.

The messy kitchen shown in Area A could be located in this area, however we felt it would get more use and increase dwell time near the cafe.

We propose a striking arched entrance doorway into the space to provide the feeling of arriving somewhere special and entering a different world as you pass through.

Some of the existing trunks will be cut and carved to create a central seating / social circle in the middle of the dens with a mixture of chunky log rounds and simple carved toadstool seats.
